ABSTRACT

The illustrated guide provides vocabulary for common classroom terminology in 15 languages: Arabic; Bengali; Chinese; Farsi; Haitian-Creole; Hindi; Italian; Korean; Polish; Russian; Serbo-Croatian; Spanish; Tagalog; Urdu; and Vietnamese. The languages are those most commonly spoken by immigrants to the United States. For each language there are four pages of illustrations labeled in the language (using alphabets and authentic alphabets, characters, and symbols), phonetically, and in English. All of the words and phrases and some additional ones are presented again in lists, organized by category, that follow the illustrated section. The illustrations are designed so that children can scan them to find the term(s) they wish to convey. The vocabulary refers to the classroom environment, teacher-child and peer interactions, body parts, playground activities, and parents and administrators. Some classroom uses for the materials are suggested. (MSE)

Acknowledgments

This book was made possible by the hard work of many people, of many different backgrounds. I'd like to thank all of them, especially:

Terry Cooper, who listened to what I wanted to do, and let me do it; Virginia Dooley, one of the rare ones, a sensitive and sensible editor (and a new friend); Lloyd Chilton, who always said it was a good idea; Nan Mohr, for her encouragement and helpful suggestions; and Jane Lerach, who welcomes and teaches immigrant children every day at JHS 111 in New York's Chinatown.

Logos International, Jaime Lucero, Betty Yuen, Peter Cipkowski, Lana Krhin, Madragor M. Janvier, Sam Kang, Dionisio De La Cruz, Irene Nguyen, Ravi Kotru, Gargi Mukherjee, Kaushal K. Saran, Jamil Daher, James Irani, Maria Tufaro, and CP Language, for their translations; and a special thanks to CP Language for their careful attention to the pronunciation of several of the languages.

All the teachers who advised me, especially: Kit Fung, Amy Hom, Carolyn Dye, Genevieve Grindle, Laura Norton, Steven Sander, Min Hong, Terra Ellingson, Carolyn C. Litke, M. Judy Haynes, Hilarie Susskind, and Marilyn Andre.

And the children whose stories encouraged me: Judy Zeng, Janet Liu, Jerry Ng, David Chan, Julie Ni, Susan Lu, Hui Ying Zhao, Alice Zhou, Jenny Tang, Joanne Huang, Janelle Chin, Thao Le, Su Qin, Chen Liu, Yiki Zhang, Hsuan Li, and Quang Zhang.

Introduction

I visited a school in Greenpoint, Brooklyn, in the fall of 1991, where many of the students were recent immigrants from Eastern Europe. One second-grade girl in particular caught my eye. She seemed to have stepped out of television documentary on life in Russia: A round, fair face with serious blue eyes, pursed, doll-like lips, and a charming, anachronistic hairdo, blonde and bobbed, side-parted and pulled across the top of her head, secured there by a huge ribbon bow. I couldn't resist. "Hello," I boomed at her. "What's your name?" To my dismay, the child's eyes brimmed with tears. My "hail fellow, well-met" manner changed, fast, as her teacher pulled me aside and told me: "Flora just arrived from Russia last week. . . she doesn't understand a word of English." Chastened, and somewhat saddened, that day I began a reflective process that would culminate in the publication of the book you're holding now.

As we all know, the first days and weeks of school can be difficult, even when teachers and students share a common language and culture. Every child approaches school with different expectations, abilities, hopes, and fears. Who knows what Flora
4 thought I was saying to her? Clearly, I was making her uncomfortable—maybe she thought I was making some demand she couldn't possibly handle. (Which, in a way, I was.) I know it wasn't my fault, but I'll always feel sorry that my well-intended "Hello" provoked tears instead of a smile. Had I said, "Здравствуйте" (ZDRAH-stvooy-tyeh) instead, who knows?!

I hope this book will help students like Thao Le, a Vietnamese-American child who wrote to me from Rosemead, California, about how things changed in school after he learned English. He wrote, "Now I start the new term everyone in my class is nice, kind, friendly. My classmate, friend, and all the people around me is nice to me. Even if I know much, much, bunch and bunch of English I never forget this and never making fun of people who do not spoke the same language. It really hard to learn English. It really hurt when you left your country. . . ."

Like Thao, many new Americans "really hurt" when they left their native countries under circumstances that can best be described as traumatic—famines, civil wars, deprivation of human rights. We can make the transition easier by greeting them with a few familiar words in their own languages; we might even make our own lives as educators easier. That was my hope in creating this Multilingual Translator. I hope that it will make life a little easier and friendlier for students and teachers all over America.

— Helen H. Moore

How to Use This Book

As you strive to communicate with your students in this multicultural age, I hope you'll find this book useful. In the traditional "guidebook" sense, of course, it's a quick and easy guide to locate commonly used words and expressions, on the spot, as they're needed.

The fifteen languages included here are the most commonly spoken languages by recent immigrants to the United States according to the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service. These languages were chosen to make the book as useful as possible to the greatest number of teachers and students.

The words and phrases are presented in two ways. For each of the fifteen languages there are four pages of illustrations which are labeled in the language (using authentic alphabets and symbols), phonetically, and in English. The illustrations are child-friendly, and with a quick scan of the page, a word or phrase can be easily found. All of the words and phrases on the illustrations, and additional words and phrases, can also be found in running lists, organized by category, which begin on page 67. Invite foreign-language speaking students to page through the book themselves to find words they want to use. They may find the phrase they want to say and then just point to the picture at first, and you (or a student "buddy") may pronounce the English words.

More Suggestions:

- You may want to reproduce the pages with illustrations and invite students to color them, repeating the words in both languages.
- Your English-speaking students may enjoy learning phrases in different languages.
- You may want to use the reproduced pages in learning centers, or incorporate them into student research projects, homework, or story-starters.
- Challenge students to incorporate the foreign phrases into their writing and speaking.
- Enlarge the illustrations on a copier, and with your own creativity, use as the basis of interactive pocket-charts or bulletin boards.
- When studying countries and cultures, key the languages in the book to the culture being studied.
- Look for connections between English and foreign words. You may encourage a budding etymologist! The possibilities are many!
